

Modern Language Association (MLA) Format and Documentation

This handout covers the basics of MLA format and the documentation of sources students frequently use. For more complete information, refer to the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, 7th ed., available in the Writing Center and at the reserve desk at the Chester Fritz Library. The MLA has a brief FAQ page online at http://www.mla.org/handbook\_faq

Formatting Your Paper

- ✓ Margins: One-inch on the top, bottom, and sides of each page.
- ✓ Page Numbering: Use your word processor to create a header that includes your last name and the page number in the upper right hand corner of the page, one half inch from the top of the page. Every page has this header.
- ✓ Title Page: MLA style does not require a title page; instead, the first page of the paper should begin with four lines, double spaced, indicating: your name, name of the course instructor, name of the course, and the date.
- ✓ Spacing: Double-space every line (including long quotes and the citations on the Works Cited page).
- ✓ Indenting: Indent the first line of every paragraph five spaces or one tab. Indent long quotations ten spaces or two tabs.
- ✓ Font and Typeface: Use a 12-point font in Times New Roman

In this example from the first page of an MLA-style paper, the student's name is Sarah Trude, her instructor is Jason Zevenbergen, and the course is English 120:

Trude 1

Censorship as an Act of Freedom

On September 22, 1995, within the same year that the film titled The Indian in the Cupboard debuted in the United States, Lynne Reid Banks' award-winning book of the same title was banned from the Bemidji, Minnesota school district. I first discovered this case of book banning on a web page that also describes other cases. The viewer is invited to click on a buried pumpkin and "harvest" books that have been banned.

Creating the Works Cited Page

- ✓ Continue the page numbering sequence from the main body of your paper.
- ✓ Center the words “Works Cited” one inch from the top of the page.
- ✓ Continue double-spacing.
- ✓ If the citation takes up more than one line of the page, indent the remaining line(s) one-half inch from the left margin.
- ✓ Reverse the name of the author: list the author’s last name followed by a comma and the author’s first name.
- ✓ Alphabetize the works you cite by the last name of the author. If there is no known author, alphabetize by the first word in the title of the work other than A, An, or The.

Johnson 12

Citing Sources in Your Paper

In your text, you can mention the source in a phrase that introduces the quotation and place the relevant page number(s) in a parenthetical reference at the end of the paraphrase or quotation, before the end punctuation:

In "Hunger as Ideology," Susan Bordo claims that women are inundated with advertisements in which "food is constructed as a sexual object of desire and eating is legitimated as much more than a purely nutritive activity" (150).

Alternatively, you can cite both the information source and the page number(s) in a parenthetical reference at the end of the paraphrase or quotation, before the end punctuation.

We demand images of youth because "sagging flesh is almost the ultimate signifier of decay and disorder" (Bordo 176).

If the quotation is more than four lines, start a block quotation on a new line and indent it one inch (two tabs) from the left margin. Do not add quotation marks. The end punctuation is placed before the parenthetical reference.

Pratt explains how interactions are viewed through the lens of power:

When linguistic (or literate) interaction is described in terms of orderliness, games, moves, or scripts, usually only legitimate moves are actually named as part of the system, where legitimacy is defined from the point of view of the party in authority—regardless of what other parties might see themselves as doing. (508)

If a source has two authors, use both last names in the parenthetical reference.

In the end of The Gold Rush, the main character George was able to find his wife even though she was swept away by the current (Benson and Mumford 26).

If a source has three authors, use the last name of each person listed.

(Murphy, Stay, and Rafoth 22)

If a source has more than three authors, you may cite all authors or use the last name of the first author followed by "et al."

(Huang et al. 10)

If a source has no identified author, give the title of the work in your parenthetical reference. You may use a shortened version of the title as long as it directs the reader to the correct entry in the works cited page. This example cites information from The Longman Guide to the Web:
